WIDGER'S QUOTATIONS

LETTERS TO HIS SON, 1746-47
[LC01][lc01sxxx.xxx]3351

DEAR BOY: There is nothing which I more wish that you should know, and which fewer people do know, than the true use and value of time. It is in everybody's mouth; but in few people's practice.

Have a real reserve with almost everybody; and have a seeming reserve with almost nobody; for it is very disagreeable to seem reserved, and very dangerous not to be so. Few people find the true medium; many are ridiculously mysterious and reserved upon trifles; and many imprudently communicative of all they know.

There is nothing that people bear more impatiently, or forgive less, than contempt; and an injury is much sooner forgotten than an insult.

The young leading the young, is like the blind leading the blind; (they will both fall into the ditch.) The only sure guide is, he who has often gone the road which you want to go.

People will, in a great degree, and not without reason, form their opinion of you, upon that which they have of your friends; and there is a Spanish proverb, which says very justly, TELL ME WHO YOU LIVE WITH AND I WILL TELL YOU WHO YOU ARE!

Attention and civility please all
Avoid singularity
Blindness of the understanding is as much to be pitied
Choose your pleasures for yourself
Civility, which is a disposition to accommodate and oblige others
Complaisant indulgence for people's weaknesses
Contempt
Disagreeable to seem reserved, and very dangerous not to be so
Do as you would be done by
Do what you are about
Dress well, and not too well
Dress like the reasonable people of your own age
Easy without too much familiarity
Employ your whole time, which few people do
Exalt the gentle in woman and man—above the merely genteel
Eyes and ears open and mouth mostly shut
Fit to live—or not live at all
Flexibility of manners is necessary in the course of the world
Genteel without affectation
Geography and history are very imperfect separately
Good-breeding
Gratitude not being universal, nor even common
Greatest fools are the greatest liars
He that is gentil doeth gentil deeds
If once we quarrel, I will never forgive
Injury is much sooner forgotten than an insult
Judge of every man's truth by his degree of understanding
Knowing any language imperfectly
Knowledge: either despise it, or think that they have enough
Labor is the unavoidable fatigue of a necessary journey
Let nothing pass till you understand it
Life of ignorance is not only a very contemptible, but tiresome
Listlessness and indolence are always blameable
Make a great difference between companions and friends
Make himself whatever he pleases, except a good poet
Merit and good-breeding will make their way everywhere
Never maintain an argument with heat and clamor
Observe, without being thought an observer
Only doing one thing at a time
Pay them with compliments, but not with confidence
Pleasure is the rock which most young people split upon
Pride of being the first of the company
Real friendship is a slow grower
Receive them with great civility, but with great incredulity
Recommend (pleasure) to you, like an Epicurean

Respectful without meanness, easy without too much familiarity
Scarce any flattery is too gross for them to swallow
Sentiment-mongers
State your difficulties, whenever you have any
Studied and elaborate dress of the ugliest women in the world
Sure guide is, he who has often gone the road which you want to Talk of natural affection is talking nonsense
Nothing so precious as time, and so irrecoverable when lost
Unguarded frankness
Whatever is worth doing at all, is worth doing well
Wrapped up and absorbed in their abstruse speculations

[LC02][lc02sxxx.xxx]3352

They go abroad, as they call it; but, in truth, they stay at home all that while; for being very awkward, confoundedly ashamed, and not speaking the languages.

If, therefore, you would avoid the accusation of pedantry on one hand, or the suspicion of ignorance on the other, abstain from learned ostentation.

Advice is seldom welcome; and those who want it the most always like it the least.

Common sense (which, in truth, very uncommon) is the best sense I know of: abide by it, it will counsel you best.

La Rochefoucault, is, I know, blamed, but I think without reason, for deriving all our actions from the source of self-love. For my own part, I see a great deal of truth, and no harm at all, in that opinion. It is certain that we seek our own happiness in everything we do.

Absolute command of your temper
Abstain from learned ostentation
Absurd term of genteel and fashionable vices
Advice is seldom welcome
Affectation in dress
Always look people in the face when you speak to them
Ancients and Moderns
Argumentative, polemical conversations
As willing and as apt to be pleased as anybody
Authority
Better not to seem to understand, than to reply
Cannot understand them, or will not desire to understand them
Cardinal de Retz

Cardinal Virtues, by first degrading them into weaknesses
Cautious how we draw inferences
Chameleon, be able to take every different hue
Cheerful in the countenance, but without laughing
Common sense (which, in truth, very uncommon)
Commonplace observations
Complaisance
Consciousness and an honest pride of doing well
Contempt
Conversation will help you almost as much as books
Conversation-stock being a joint and common property
Converse with his inferiors without insolence
Deserve a little, and you shall have but a little
Desirous of praise from the praiseworthy
Dexterity enough to conceal a truth without telling a lie
Difficulties seem to them, impossibilities
Distinguish between the useful and the curious
Do as you would be done by
Do what you will but do something all day long
Either do not think, or do not love to think
Equally forbid insolent contempt, or low envy and jealousy
Even where you are sure, seem rather doubtful
Every virtue, has its kindred vice or weakness
Fiddle-faddle stories, that carry no information along with them
Flattery of women
Forge accusations against themselves
Forgive, but not approve, the bad.
Frank, open, and ingenuous exterior, with a prudent interior
Gain the affections as well as the esteem
Generosity often runs into profusion
Go to the bottom of things
Good company
Graces: Without us, all labor is vain
Great learning; which, if not accompanied with sound judgment
Great numbers of people met together, animate each other
Habit and prejudice
Half done or half known
Hardly any body good for every thing
Have a will and an opinion of your own, and adhere to it
Have but one set of jokes to live upon
He will find it out of himself without your endeavors
Heart has such an influence over the understanding
Helps only, not as guides
Historians
Honest error is to be pitied, not ridiculed
Honestest man loves himself best
How much you have to do; and how little time to do it in
I hope, I wish, I doubt, and fear alternately
I shall always love you as you shall deserve.
If you would convince others, seem open to conviction yourself

Impertinent insult upon custom and fashion
Inaction at your age is unpardonable
Jealous of being slighted
Judge them all by their merits, but not by their ages
Keep good company, and company above yourself
Know their real value, and how much they are generally overrated
Knowledge is like power in this respect
Knowledge of a scholar with the manners of a courtier
Laughing, I must particularly warn you against it
Lazy mind, and the trifling, frivolous mind
Let me see more of you in your letters
Little minds mistake little objects for great ones
Loud laughter is the mirth of the mob
Low buffoonery, or silly accidents, that always excite laughter
Low company, most falsely and impudently, call pleasure
Luther's disappointed avarice
Make yourself necessary
Manner of doing things is often more important
Manners must adorn knowledge
May not forget with ease what you have with difficulty learned
More one sees, the less one either wonders or admires
More you know, the modester you should be
Mortifying inferiority in knowledge, rank, fortune
Most long talkers single out some one unfortunate man in company
Much sooner forgive an injustice than an insult
Mystical nonsense
Name that we leave behind at one place often gets before us
Neglect them in little things, they will leave you in great
Negligence of it implies an indifference about pleasing
Neither retail nor receive scandal willingly
Never quit a subject till you are thoroughly master of it
Never seem wiser, nor more learned, than the people you are with
Never slattern away one minute in idleness
Never to speak of yourself at all
Not one minute of the day in which you do nothing at all

Not to admire anything too much
Oftener led by their hearts than by their understandings
Out of livery; which makes them both impertinent and useless
Overvalue what we do not know
Pay your own reckoning, but do not treat the whole company
People angling for praise
People never desire all till they have gotten a great deal
Plain notions of right and wrong
Planted while young, that degree of knowledge now my refuge
Pleased to some degree by showing a desire to please
Pleasing in company is the only way of being pleased in yourself
Pleasure and business with equal inattention
Prefer useful to frivolous conversations
Pride remembers it forever

Prudent reserve
Reason ought to direct the whole, but seldom does
Refuge of people who have neither wit nor invention of their own
Refuse more gracefully than other people could grant
Repeating
Rochefoucault
Rough corners which mere nature has given to the smoothest
Scandal: receiver is always thought, as bad as the thief
Scarcely any body who is absolutely good for nothing
Scrupled no means to obtain his ends
Secrets
Seeming frankness with a real reserve
Seeming openness is prudent
Self-love draws a thick veil between us and our faults
Serious without being dull
Shakespeare
Shepherds and ministers are both men
Some complaisance and attention to fools is prudent
Some men pass their whole time in doing nothing
Something or other is to be got out of everybody
Swearing
Take nothing for granted, upon the bare authority of the author
Take, rather than give, the tone of the company you are in
Talk often, but never long
Talk sillily upon a subject of other people's Talking of either your own or other people's domestic affairs
Tell me whom you live with, and I will tell you who you are Tell stories very seldom
The best have something bad, and something little
The worst have something good, and sometimes something great
Thin veil of Modesty drawn before Vanity
Thoroughly, not superficially
To know people's real sentiments, I trust much more to my eyes
Unopened, because one title in twenty has been omitted
Value of moments, when cast up, is immense
Vanity, that source of many of our follies
What displeases or pleases you in others
What you feel pleases you in them
When well dressed for the day think no more of it afterward
Will not so much as hint at our follies
Witty without satire or commonplace
Wrongs are often forgiven; but contempt never is
You had much better hold your tongue than them
Your merit and your manners can alone raise you

[LC03][lc03sxxx.xxx]3353

He always does more than he says.

The arrogant pedant does not communicate, but promulgates his knowledge. He does not give it you, but he inflicts it upon you; and is(if possible) more desirous to show you your own ignorance than his own learning.

Due attention to the inside of books, and due contempt for the outside, is the proper relation between a man of sense and his books.

Cardinal de Retz observes, very justly, that every numerous assembly is a mob, influenced by their passions, humors, and affections, which nothing but eloquence ever did or ever can engage.

Frivolous curiosity about trifles, and a laborious attention to little objects which neither require nor deserve a moment's thought, lower a man; who from thence is thought (and not unjustly) incapable of greater matters.

Idleness is only the refuge of weak minds, and the holiday of fools.

May you live as long as you are fit to live, but no longer! or may you rather die before you cease to be fit to live!

A joker is near akin to a buffoon
Ablest man will sometimes do weak things
Above trifles, he is never vehement and eager about them
Advise those who do not speak elegantly, not to speak
Always does more than he says
Always some favorite word for the time being
Arrogant pedant
Ascribing the greatest actions to the most trifling causes
Assign the deepest motives for the most trifling actions
Attend to the objects of your expenses, but not to the sums
Attention to the inside of books
Awkward address, ungraceful attitudes and actions
Being in the power of every man to hurt him
Can hardly be said to see what they see
Cardinal Mazarin
Cardinal Richelieu
Complaisance due to the custom of the place
Conjectures supply the defect of unattainable knowledge
Connive at knaves, and tolerate fools
Deep learning is generally tainted with pedantry
Deepest learning, without good-breeding, is unwelcome
Desirous of pleasing
Dictate to them while you seem to be directed by them
Dissimulation is only to hide our own cards
Do not become a virtuoso of small wares
Does not give it you, but he inflicts it upon you
Endeavors to please and oblige our fellow-creatures
Every man pretends to common sense

Every numerous assembly is a mob
 Eyes and the ears are the only roads to the heart
 Few dare dissent from an established opinion
 Few things which people in general know less, than how to love
 Flattering people behind their backs
 Fools never perceive where they are ill-timed
 Friendship upon very slight acquaintance
 Frivolous curiosity about trifles
 Frivolous, idle people, whose time hangs upon their own hands
 Gain the heart, or you gain nothing
 General conclusions from certain particular principles
 Good manners
 Haste and hurry are very different things
 Herd of mankind can hardly be said to think
 Human nature is always the same
 Hurt those they love by a mistaken indulgence
 Idleness is only the refuge of weak minds
 If I don't mind his orders he won't mind my draughts
 Inattentive, absent; and distrait
 Incontineny of friendship among young fellows
 Indiscriminate familiarity
 Inquisition
 Insist upon your neither piping nor fiddling yourself
 Insolent civility
 It is not sufficient to deserve well; one must please well too
 Know the true value of time
 Known people pretend to vices they had not
 Knows what things are little, and what not
 Learn, if you can, the WHY and the WHEREFORE
 Leave the company, at least as soon as he is wished out of it
 Led, much oftener by little things than by great ones
 Little failings and weaknesses
 Love with him, who they think is the most in love with them
 Machiavel
 Mastery of one's temper
 May you live as long as you are fit to live, but no longer!
 May you rather die before you cease to be fit to live
 Moderation with your enemies
 Most people have ears, but few have judgment; tickle those ears
 Never implicitly adopt a character upon common fame
 Never would know anything that he had not a mind to know
 No man is distrait with the man he fears, or the woman he loves
 Nothing in courts is exactly as it appears to be
 Our understandings are generally the DUPES of our hearts
 People will repay, and with interest too, inattention
 Perfection of everything that is worth doing at all
 POLITICIANS NEITHER LOVE NOR HATE
 Public speaking
 Quietly cherished error, instead of seeking for truth
 Reciprocally profess wishes which they seldom form

Reserve with your friends
Six, or at most seven hours sleep
Sooner forgive an injury than an insult
There are many avenues to every man
Those who remarkably affect any one virtue
Three passions that often put honesty to most severe trials
To great caution, you can join seeming frankness and openness
Trifling parts, with their little jargon
Truth leaves no room for compliments
We have many of those useful prejudices in this country
Whatever pleases you most in others

[LC04][lc04sxxx.xxx]3354

What pleases you in others, will in general please them in you.

Spare the persons while you lash the crimes.

Pocket all your knowledge with your watch, and never pull it out in company unless desired: the producing of the one unasked, implies that you are weary of the company; and the producing of the other unrequired, will make the company weary of you.

People hate those who make them feel their own inferiority. Conceal all your learning carefully...

A man of the world knows the force of flattery; but then he knows how, when, and where to give it; he proportions his dose to the constitution of the patient. He flatters by application, by inference, by comparison, by hint, and seldom directly.

Absurd romances of the two last centuries
Advocate, the friend, but not the bully of virtue
Assurance and intrepidity
Attention
Author is obscure and difficult in his own language
Characters, that never existed, are insipidly displayed
Commanding with dignity, you must serve up to it with diligence
Complaisance to every or anybody's opinion
Conceal all your learning carefully
Connections
Contempt
Content yourself with mediocrity in nothing
Dance to those who pipe
Decides peremptorily upon every subject
Desire to please, and that is the main point
Desirous to make you their friend
Despairs of ever being able to pay

Difference in everything between system and practice
Dignity to be kept up in pleasures, as well as in business
Distinction between simulation and dissimulation
Do not mistake the tinsel of Tasso for the gold of Virgil
Doing what may deserve to be written
Done under concern and embarrassment, must be ill done
Dressed as the generality of people of fashion are
Economist of your time
Establishing a character of integrity and good manners
Feed him, and feed upon him at the same time
Flattery
Fortune stoops to the forward and the bold
Frivolous and superficial pertness
Gentlemen, who take such a fancy to you at first sight
Guard against those who make the most court to you
Have no pleasures but your own
If you will persuade, you must first please
Improve yourself with the old, divert yourself with the young
Indiscriminately loading their memories with every part alike
Insidious in his pleasures, as inefficient in everything else
Labor more to put them in conceit with themselves
Lay down a method for everything, and stick to it inviolably
Let blockheads read what blockheads wrote
Let nobody discover that you do know your own value
Let them quietly enjoy their errors in taste
Man is dishonored by not resenting an affront
Manner is full as important as the matter
Method
Modesty is the only sure bait when you angle for praise
Money, the cause of much mischief
More people have ears to be tickled, than understandings to judge
Most people enjoy the inferiority of their best friends
Necessity of scrupulously preserving the appearances
Never affect the character in which you have a mind to shine
Never read history without having maps
No one feels pleasure, who does not at the same time give it
Not only pure, but, like Caesar's wife, unsuspected
Often more necessary to conceal contempt than resentment
Passes for a wit, though he hath certainly no uncommon share
Patient toleration of certain airs of superiority
People hate those who make them feel their own inferiority
People lose a great deal of time by reading
Pleased with him, by making them first pleased with themselves
Pleasure is necessarily reciprocal
Pocket all your knowledge with your watch
Put out your time, but to good interest
Real merit of any kind will be discovered
Respect without timidity
Rich man never borrows
Same coolness and unconcern in any and every company

Seem to like and approve of everything at first
 Sentiments that were never felt, pompously described
 She has all the reading that a woman should have
 She who conquers only catches a Tartar
 Silence in love betrays more woe
 Steady assurance, with seeming modesty
 Suspicion of age, no woman, let her be ever so old, ever forgive
 Take the hue of the company you are with
 Taking up adventitious, proves their want of intrinsic merit
 The present moments are the only ones we are sure of
 Those whom you can make like themselves better
 Timidity and diffidence
 To be heard with success, you must be heard with pleasure
 To be pleased one must please
 Trifle only with triflers; and be serious only with the serious
 Trite jokes and loud laughter reduce him to a buffoon
 Unwilling and forced; it will never please
 Well dressed, not finely dressed
 What is impossible, and what is only difficult
 What pleases you in others, will in general please them in you
 Whatever real merit you have, other people will discover
 Wish you, my dear friend, as many happy new years as you deserve
 Women choose their favorites more by the ear
 Words are the dress of thoughts
 Writing what may deserve to be read
 You must be respectable, if you will be respected
 Your character there, whatever it is, will get before you here

 [LC05][lc05sxxx.xxx]3355

If you find that you have a hastiness in your temper, which unguardedly breaks out into indiscreet sallies, or rough expressions, to either your superiors, your equals, or your inferiors, watch it narrowly, check it carefully, and call the 'suaviter in modo' to your assistance: at the first impulse of passion, be silent till you can be soft.

He often is unintelligible to his readers, and sometimes so, I dare say, to himself.

"The prostrate lover, when he lowest lies,
 But stoops to conquer, and but kneels to rise."

We are so made, we love to be pleased better than to be informed; information is, in a certain degree, mortifying, as it implies our previous ignorance; it must be sweetened to be palatable.

Free from the guilt: be free from the suspicion, too. Mankind, as I have often told you, are more governed by appearances than by realities; and with regard to opinion, one had better be really rough and hard, with the appearance of gentleness and softness, than just the reverse.

A favor may make an enemy, and an injury may make a friend
Affectation of business
Applauded often, without approving
At the first impulse of passion, be silent till you can be soft
Avoid cacophony, and, what is very near as bad, monotony
Be silent till you can be soft
Being intelligible is now no longer the fashion
Better refuse a favor gracefully, than to grant it clumsily
Business must be well, not affectedly dressed
Business now is to shine, not to weigh
Cease to love when you cease to be agreeable
Chit-chat, useful to keep off improper and too serious subjects
Committing acts of hostility upon the Graces
Concealed what learning I had
Consciousness of merit makes a man of sense more modest
Disagreeable things may be done so agreeably as almost to oblige
Disputes with heat
Easy without negligence
Elegance in one language will reproduce itself in all
Every man knows that he understands religion and politics
Every numerous assembly is MOB
Everybody is good for something
Expresses himself with more fire than elegance
Frank without indiscretion
Full-bottomed wigs were contrived for his humpback
Gentleness of manners, with firmness of mind
German, who has taken into his head that he understands French
Grow wiser when it is too late
Habitual eloquence
Hardened to the wants and distresses of mankind
Have you learned to carve?
If free from the guilt, be free from the suspicion, too
Inclined to be fat, but I hope you will decline it
Indolently say that they cannot do
Information implies our previous ignorance; it must be sweetened
Information is, in a certain degree, mortifying
Insinuates himself only into the esteem of fools
It is a real inconvenience to anybody to be fat
Know, yourself and others
Knowing how much you have, and how little you want
Last beautiful varnish, which raises the colors
Learn to keep your own secrets
Loved without being despised, and feared without being hated
Man of sense may be in haste, but can never be in a hurry
Mangles what he means to carve
Mazarin and Lewis the Fourteenth riveted the shackles
Meditation and reflection

Mere reason and good sense is never to be talked to a mob
 Mistimes or misplaces everything
 Mitigating, engaging words do by no means weaken your argument
 MOB: Understanding they have collectively none
 Often necessary, not to manifest all one feels
 One must often yield, in order to prevail
 Only because she will not, and not because she cannot
 Our frivolous dissertations upon the weather, or upon whist
 Outward air of modesty to all he does
 Richelieu came and shackled the nation
 Rochefoucault, who, I am afraid, paints man very exactly
 See what you see, and to hear what you hear
 Seems to have no opinion of his own
 Seldom a misfortune to be childless
 She has uncommon, sense and knowledge for a woman
 Speaking to himself in the glass
 Style is the dress of thoughts
 Success turns much more upon manner than matter
 Tacitus
 Take characters, as they do most things, upon trust
 They thought I informed, because I pleased them
 Unaffected silence upon that subject is the only true medium
 Unintelligible to his readers, and sometimes to himself
 Use palliatives when you contradict
 We love to be pleased better than to be informed
 Woman like her, who has always pleased, and often been pleased
 Women are the only refiners of the merit of men
 Yielded commonly without conviction

 [LC06][lc06sxxx.xxx]3356

Our prejudices are our mistresses; reason is at best our wife, very often heard indeed, but seldom minded.

Enjoy every moment; pleasures do not commonly last so long as life, and therefore should not be neglected; and the longest life is too short for knowledge, consequently every moment is precious.

A young fellow ought to be wiser than he should seem to be; and an old fellow ought to seem wise whether he really be so or not.

Laziness of mind, or inattention, are as great enemies to knowledge as incapacity; for, in truth, what difference is there between a man who will not, and a man who cannot be informed? This difference only, that the former is justly to be blamed, the latter to be pitied. And yet how many there are, very capable of receiving knowledge, who from laziness, inattention, and incuriousness, will not so much as ask for it, much less take the least pains to acquire it!

Vicissitudes frequently make friends of enemies, and enemies of friends; you must labor, therefore, to acquire that great and uncommon talent of hating with good-breeding and loving with prudence.

Art of pleasing is the most necessary
Assenting, but without being servile and abject
Assertion instead of argument
Attacked by ridicule, and, punished with contempt
Bold, but with great seeming modesty
Close, without being costive
Command of our temper, and of our countenance
Company is, in truth, a constant state of negotiation
Consider things in the worst light, to show your skill
Darkness visible
Defended by arms, adorned by manners, and improved by laws
Doing nothing, and might just as well be asleep
Endeavor to hear, and know all opinions
Enjoy all those advantages
Few people know how to love, or how to hate
Fools, who can never be undeceived
Frank, but without indiscretion
Frequently make friends of enemies, and enemies of friends
Grave without the affectation of wisdom
Horace
How troublesome an old correspondent must be to a young one
I CANNOT DO SUCH A THING
Ignorant of their natural rights, cherished their chains
Inattention
Infallibly to be gained by every sort of flattery
Judges from the appearances of things, and not from the reality
Keep your own temper and artfully warm other people's King's popularity is a better guard than their army
Made him believe that the world was made for him
Make every man I met with like me, and every woman love me
Man or woman cannot resist an engaging exterior
Man who is only good on holydays is good for very little
Never seek for wit; if it presents itself, well and good
Not making use of any one capital letter
Notes by which dances are now pricked down as well as tunes
Old fellow ought to seem wise whether he really be so or not
Please all who are worth pleasing; offend none
Pleasures do not commonly last so long as life
Polite, but without the troublesome forms and stiffness
Prejudices are our mistresses
Quarrel with them when they are grown up, for being spoiled
Read with caution and distrust
Ruined their own son by what they called loving him
Secret, without being dark and mysterious
Seeming inattention to the person who is speaking to you
Talent of hating with good-breeding and loving with prudence

The longest life is too short for knowledge
Trifles that concern you are not trifles to me
Truth, but not the whole truth, must be the invariable principle
Useful sometimes to see the things which one ought to avoid
Where one would gain people, remember that nothing is little
Wife, very often heard indeed, but seldom minded
Wit may create any admirers but makes few friends
Young fellow ought to be wiser than he should seem to be

[LC07][lc07sxxx.xxx]3357

Never to show the least symptom of resentment which you cannot to a certain degree gratify; but always to smile, where you cannot strike.

Singularity is only pardonable in old age and retirement; I may now be as singular as I please, but you may not.

You will find that reason, which always ought to direct mankind, seldom does; but that passions and weaknesses commonly usurp its seat, and rule in its stead.

I look upon indolence as a sort of SUICIDE; for the man is effectually destroyed, though the appetites of the brute may survive. Business by no means forbids pleasures; on the contrary, they reciprocally season each other; and I will venture to affirm, that no man enjoys either in perfection, that does not join both.

Reasons alleged are seldom the true ones.

It is only the manner of saying or writing it that makes it appear new. Convince yourself that manner is almost everything, in everything; and study it accordingly.

According as their interest prompts them to wish
Acquainted with books, and an absolute stranger to men
Affectation of singularity or superiority
All have senses to be gratified
Business by no means forbids pleasures
Clamorers triumph
Doing anything that will deserve to be written
Ears to hear, but not sense enough to judge
ERE TITTING YOUTH SHALL SHOVE YOU FROM THE STAGE
Good manners are the settled medium of social life
Good reasons alleged are seldom the true ones
Holiday eloquence
I know myself (no common piece of knowledge, let me tell you)
Indolence
INTOLERATION in religious, and inhospitality in civil matters
Kick him upstairs

Many are very willing, and very few able
Perseverance has surprising effects
Pettish, pouting conduct is a great deal too young
Reason, which always ought to direct mankind, seldom does
Singularity is only pardonable in old age
Smile, where you cannot strike
To govern mankind, one must not overrate them
Too like, and too exact a picture of human nature
Vanity, interest, and absurdity, always display
Warm and young thanks, not old and cold ones
Writing anything that may deserve to be read
Young men are as apt to think themselves wise enough
Young people are very apt to overrate both men and things

[LC08][lc08sxxx.xxx]3358

MY DEAR FRIEND: I have so little to do, that I am surprised how I can find time to write to you so often. Do not stare at the seeming paradox; for it is an undoubted truth, that the less one has to do, the less time one finds to do it in.

Our conjectures pass upon us for truths; we will know what we do not know, and often, what we cannot know: so mortifying to our pride is the bare suspicion of ignorance!

There is not a more prudent maxim than to live with one's enemies as if they may one day become one's friends; as it commonly happens, sooner or later.

What have I done to-day? Have I done anything that can be of use to myself or others? Have I employed my time, or have I squandered it? Have I lived out the day, or have I dozed it away in sloth and laziness?

Many things which seem extremely probable are not true: and many which seem highly improbable are true.

The more one works, the more willing one is to work. We are all, more or less, 'des animaux d'habitude'.

Am still unwell; I cannot help it!
Apt to make them think themselves more necessary than they are
BUT OF THIS EVERY MAN WILL BELIEVE AS HE THINKS PROPER
Conjectures pass upon us for truths
Enemies as if they may one day become one's friends
Have I employed my time, or have I squandered it?
Home, be it ever so homely
Jog on like man and wife; that is, seldom agreeing
Less one has to do, the less time one finds to do it in
Many things which seem extremely probable are not true

More one works, the more willing one is to work
Most ignorant are, as usual, the boldest conjecturers
Nipped in the bud
No great regard for human testimony
Not to communicate, prematurely, one's hopes or one's fears
Person to you whom I am very indifferent about, I mean myself
Petty jury
Something must be said, but that something must be nothing
Sow jealousies among one's enemies
Think to atone by zeal for their want of merit and importance
Think yourself less well than you are, in order to be quite so
What have I done to-day?
Will pay very dear for the quarrels and ambition of a few

LETTERS TO HIS SON, 1759-65
[LC09][lc09sxxx.xxx]3359

Whatever one MUST do, one should do 'de bonne grace'.

Appears that you are rather a gainer by your misfortune.

I, who am not apt to know anything that I do not know.

In short, let it be your maxim through life to know all you can know, yourself; and never to trust implicitly to the informations of others. This rule has been of infinite service to me in the course of my life.

I feel a gradual decay, though a gentle one; and I think that I shall not tumble, but slide gently to the bottom of the hill of life. When that will be, I neither know nor care, for I am very weary.

I find nothing much worth either desiring or fearing. But these reflections, which suit with seventy, would be greatly premature at two-and-thirty. So make the best of your time; enjoy the present hour, but 'memor ultimae'.

In the intercourse of the world, it is often necessary to seem ignorant of what one knows, and to have forgotten what one remembers.

Always made the best of the best, and never made bad worse
American Colonies
Be neither transported nor depressed by the accidents of life
Doing, 'de bonne grace', what you could not help doing
EVERY DAY IS STILL BUT AS THE FIRST
Everything has a better and a worse side
Extremely weary of this silly world
Gainer by your misfortune
I, who am not apt to know anything that I do not know
Intrinsic, and not their imaginary value
My own health varies, as usual, but never deviates into good

National honor and interest have been sacrificed to private
Neither abilities or words enough to call a coach
Neither know nor care, (when I die) for I am very weary
Never saw a froward child mended by whipping
Never to trust implicitly to the informations of others
Not make their want still worse by grieving and regretting them
Not tumble, but slide gently to the bottom of the hill of life
Nothing much worth either desiring or fearing
Often necessary to seem ignorant of what one knows
Only solid and lasting peace, between a man and his wife
Oysters, are only in season in the R months
Patience is the only way not to make bad worse
Recommends self-conversation to all authors
Return you the ball 'a la volee'
Settled here for good, as it is called
Stamp-duty, which our Colonists absolutely refuse to pay
Thinks himself much worse than he is
To seem to have forgotten what one remembers
We shall be feared, if we do not show that we fear
Whatever one must do, one should do 'de bonne grace'
Who takes warning by the fate of others?
Women are all so far Machiavelians

[LC10][lc10sxxx.xxx]3360

All I desire for my own burial is not to be buried alive; but how or where, I think must be entirely indifferent to every rational creature.

Get what I can, if I cannot get what I will.

There must have been some very grave and important reasons for so extraordinary a measure: but what they were I do not pretend to guess; and perhaps I shall never know, though all the coffeehouses here do.

I am neither well nor ill, but UNWELL.

Those who wish him the best, as I do, must wish him dead.

I would have all intoleration intolaterated in its turn.

Anxiety for my health and life
Borough-jobber
I shall never know, though all the coffeehouses here do.
Read my eyes out every day, that I may not hang myself
Stamp-act has proved a most pernicious measure
Water-drinkers can write nothing good
Would not tell what she did not know

THE ENTIRE PG EDITION OF CHESTERFIELD

[LC11][lcewkxxx.xxx]3261

A joker is near akin to a buffoon
A favor may make an enemy, and an injury may make a friend
Absolute command of your temper
Absurd term of genteel and fashionable vices
Absurd romances of the two last centuries
According as their interest prompts them to wish
Acquainted with books, and an absolute stranger to men
Advice is seldom welcome
Advise those who do not speak elegantly, not to speak
Advocate, the friend, but not the bully of virtue
Affectation of singularity or superiority
Affectation in dress
Affectation of business
All have senses to be gratified
Always made the best of the best, and never made bad worse
Always does more than he says
Always look people in the face when you speak to them
Am still unwell; I cannot help it!
Ancients and Moderns
Anxiety for my health and life
Applauded often, without approving
Apt to make them think themselves more necessary than they are
Argumentative, polemical conversations
Arrogant pedant
Art of pleasing is the most necessary
As willing and as apt to be pleased as anybody
Ascribing the greatest actions to the most trifling causes
Assenting, but without being servile and abject
Assertion instead of argument
Assign the deepest motives for the most trifling actions
Assurance and intrepidity
Attacked by ridicule, and, punished with contempt
Attend to the objects of your expenses, but not to the sums
Attention to the inside of books
Attention and civility please all
Attention
Authority
Avoid cacophony, and, what is very near as bad, monotony

Avoid singularity
 Awkward address, ungraceful attitudes and actions
 Be neither transported nor depressed by the accidents of life
 Be silent till you can be soft
 Being in the power of every man to hurt him
 Being intelligible is now no longer the fashion
 Better not to seem to understand, than to reply
 Better refuse a favor gracefully, than to grant it clumsily
 Blindness of the understanding is as much to be pitied
 Bold, but with great seeming modesty
 Borough-jobber
 BUT OF THIS EVERY MAN WILL BELIEVE AS HE THINKS PROPER
 Can hardly be said to see what they see
 Cannot understand them, or will not desire to understand them
 Cardinal Mazarin
 Cardinal Richelieu
 Cardinal de Retz
 Cardinal Virtues, by first degrading them into weaknesses
 Cautious how we draw inferences
 Cease to love when you cease to be agreeable
 Characters, that never existed, are insipidly displayed
 Cheerful in the countenance, but without laughing
 Civility, which is a disposition to accommodate and oblige others
 Clamorers triumph
 Close, without being costive
 Command of our temper, and of our countenance
 Commanding with dignity, you must serve up to it with diligence
 Committing acts of hostility upon the Graces
 Common sense (which, in truth, very uncommon)
 Company is, in truth, a constant state of negotiation
 Complaisance
 Complaisance to every or anybody's opinion
 Complaisance due to the custom of the place
 Conceal all your learning carefully
 Connections
 Consciousness of merit makes a man of sense more modest
 Consciousness and an honest pride of doing well

Contempt
Contempt

Content yourself with mediocrity in nothing
Conversation_stock being a joint and common property
Conversation will help you almost as much as books
Converse with his inferiors without insolence
Dance to those who pipe
Decides peremptorily upon every subject
Defended by arms, adorned by manners, and improved by laws
Deserve a little, and you shall have but a little
Desire to please, and that is the main point
Desirous of pleasing
Despairs of ever being able to pay
Difference in everything between system and practice
Difficulties seem to them, impossibilities
Dignity to be kept up in pleasures, as well as in business
Disagreeable to seem reserved, and very dangerous not to be so
Disagreeable things may be done so agreeably as almost to oblige
Distinction between simulation and dissimulation
Do what you are about
Does not give it you, but he inflicts it upon you
Doing, 'de bonne grace', what you could not help doing
Doing what may deserve to be written
Doing nothing, and might just as well be asleep
Doing anything that will deserve to be written
Dress like the reasonable people of your own age
Dressed as the generality of people of fashion are
Ears to hear, but not sense enough to judge

 Elegance in one language will reproduce itself in all
 Employ your whole time, which few people do
 Endeavor to hear, and know all opinions
 Endeavors to please and oblige our fellow creatures
 Enemies as if they may one day become one's friends
 Even where you are sure, seem rather doubtful
 Every numerous assembly is MOB
 Every virtue, has its kindred vice or weakness
 Every man knows that he understands religion and politics
 Every numerous assembly is a mob
 Every man pretends to common sense
EVERY DAY IS STILL BUT AS THE FIRST
 Everybody is good for something
 Expresses himself with more fire than elegance
 Eyes and the ears are the only roads to the heart
 Fiddle-faddle stories, that carry no information along with them
 Fit to live or not live at all
 Flattering people behind their backs
 Flattery
 Flexibility of manners is necessary in the course of the world
 Fools, who can never be undeceived
 Forge accusations against themselves
 Forgive, but not approve, the bad.
 Fortune stoops to the forward and the bold
 Frank without indiscretion
 Frank, but without indiscretion
 Gain the heart, or you gain nothing
 Gain the affections as well as the esteem

 Generosity often runs into profusion

 Geography and history are very imperfect separately
 German, who has taken into his head that he understands French
 Good reasons alleged are seldom the true ones
 Good breeding
 Graces: Without us, all labor is vain
 Gratitude not being universal, nor even common
 Greatest fools are the greatest liars
 Grow wiser when it is too late
 Guard against those who make the most court to you
 Habit and prejudice
 Hardly any body good for every thing
 Haste and hurry are very different things
 Have no pleasures but your own
 Have a will and an opinion of your own, and adhere to it
 Have I employed my time, or have I squandered it?
 Have but one set of jokes to live upon
 Have you learned to carve?
 He that is gentil doeth gentil deeds
 He will find it out of himself without your endeavors
 Heart has such an influence over the understanding
 Helps only, not as guides
 Historians
 Holiday eloquence
 Home, be it ever so homely
 Honest error is to be pitied, not ridiculed
 Horace
 How troublesome an old correspondent must be to a young one
 How much you have to do; and how little time to do it in
 Hurt those they love by a mistaken indulgence
 I hope, I wish, I doubt, and fear alternately

 I shall always love you as you shall deserve.
 I know myself (no common piece of knowledge, let me tell you)
 I CANNOT DO SUCH A THING
 I, who am not apt to know anything that I do not know
 Idleness is only the refuge of weak minds
 If you would convince others, seem open to conviction yourself
 If I don't mind his orders he won't mind my draughts
 If you will persuade, you must first please
 If once we quarrel, I will never forgive
 Inattention
 Inattentive, absent; and distrait
 Inclined to be fat, but I hope you will decline it
 Incontinency of friendship among young fellows
 Indiscriminate familiarity
 Indolence
 Indolently say that they cannot do
 Infallibly to be gained by every sort of flattery
 Information is, in a certain degree, mortifying
 Inquisition
 Insinuates himself only into the esteem of fools
 Insipid in his pleasures, as inefficient in everything else
 Insist upon your neither piping nor fiddling yourself
 Insolent civility
 Intrinsic, and not their imaginary value
 It is a real inconvenience to anybody to be fat
 It is not sufficient to deserve well; one must please well too
 Jealous of being slighted
 Jog on like man and wife; that is, seldom agreeing
 Judge of every man's truth by his degree of understanding
 Know their real value, and how much they are generally overrated
 Know the true value of time
 Know, yourself and others
 Knowing how much you have, and how little you want
 Knowing any language imperfectly

Knowledge: either despise it, or think that they have enough
Knowledge of a scholar with the manners of a courtier
Knows what things are little, and what not

Laughing, I must particularly warn you against it
Lay down a method for everything, and stick to it inviolably
Lazy mind, and the trifling, frivolous mind
Learn to keep your own secrets
Learn, if you can, the WHY and the WHEREFORE
Leave the company, at least as soon as he is wished out of it
Less one has to do, the less time one finds to do it in
Let them quietly enjoy their errors in taste
Let nobody discover that you do know your own value
Let nothing pass till you understand it
Life of ignorance is not only a very contemptible, but tiresome
Love with him, who they think is the most in love with them
Loved without being despised, and feared without being hated
Low company, most falsely and impudently, call pleasure
Low buffoonery, or silly accidents, that always excite laughter
Luther's disappointed avarice
Machiavel
Made him believe that the world was made for him
Make a great difference between companions and friends
Make himself whatever he pleases, except a good poet
Make yourself necessary
Man is dishonored by not resenting an affront
Man or woman cannot resist an engaging exterior
Man of sense may be in haste, but can never be in a hurry
Man who is only good on holydays is good for very little
Manner of doing things is often more important
Manners must adorn knowledge
Many things which seem extremely probable are not true
Many are very willing, and very few able
Mastery of one's temper
May you live as long as you are fit to live, but no longer!

Mere reason and good sense is never to be talked to a mob
Merit and good breeding will make their way everywhere
Method
Mistimes or misplaces everything
Mitigating, engaging words do by no means weaken your argument
MOB: Understanding they have collectively none
Money, the cause of much mischief
More one sees, the less one either wonders or admires
Most ignorant are, as usual, the boldest conjecturers
Most people have ears, but few have judgment; tickle those ears
Much sooner forgive an injustice than an insult
My own health varies, as usual, but never deviates into good
Mystical nonsense
Name that we leave behind at one place often gets before us
National honor and interest have been sacrificed to private
Neglect them in little things, they will leave you in great
Negligence of it implies an indifference about pleasing
Neither know nor care, (when I die) for I am very weary
Neither abilities or words enough to call a coach
Never would know anything that he had not a mind to know
Never read history without having maps
Never affect the character in which you have a mind to shine
Never implicitly adopt a character upon common fame
Never seek for wit; if it presents itself, well and good
Never slattern away one minute in idleness
Never quit a subject till you are thoroughly master of it
Never maintain an argument with heat and clamor
Never saw a froward child mended by whipping
Never to trust implicitly to the informations of others
Nipped in the bud
No great regard for human testimony
No man is distraight with the man he fears, or the woman he loves
No one feels pleasure, who does not at the same time give it
Not tumble, but slide gently to the bottom of the hill of life

Not make their want still worse by grieving and regretting them
Not making use of any one capital letter
Notes by which dances are now pricked down as well as tunes
Nothing much worth either desiring or fearing

Nothing so precious as time, and so irrecoverable when lost
Observe, without being thought an observer
Often more necessary to conceal contempt than resentment
Often necessary, not to manifest all one feels
Often necessary to seem ignorant of what one knows
One must often yield, in order to prevail
Only doing one thing at a time
Only because she will not, and not because she cannot
Only solid and lasting peace, between a man and his wife
Our understandings are generally the DUPES of our hearts
Our frivolous dissertations upon the weather, or upon whist
Out of livery; which makes them both impertinent and useless
Outward air of modesty to all he does
Overvalue what we do not know
Oysters, are only in season in the R months
Pay them with compliments, but not with confidence
People never desire all till they have gotten a great deal
People lose a great deal of time by reading
People will repay, and with interest too, inattention
People hate those who make them feel their own inferiority
Perfection of everything that is worth doing at all
Perseverance has surprising effects
Person to you whom I am very indifferent about, I mean myself
Pettish, pouting conduct is a great deal too young
Petty jury
Plain notions of right and wrong
Planted while young, that degree of knowledge now my refuge
Please all who are worth pleasing; offend none
Pleased to some degree by showing a desire to please
Pleased with him, by making them first pleased with themselves

Pleasure is the rock which most young people split upon
 Pleasures do not commonly last so long as life
 Pocket all your knowledge with your watch
 Prefer useful to frivolous conversations
 Prejudices are our mistresses
 Pride remembers it forever
 Pride of being the first of the company
 Prudent reserve
 Public speaking
 Put out your time, but to good interest
 Quarrel with them when they are grown up, for being spoiled
 Quietly cherished error, instead of seeking for truth
 Read my eyes out every day, that I may not hang myself
 Read with caution and distrust
 Real merit of any kind will be discovered
 Real friendship is a slow grower
 Reason ought to direct the whole, but seldom does
 Reason, which always ought to direct mankind, seldom does
 Receive them with great civility, but with great incredulity
 Reciprocally profess wishes which they seldom form
 Recommend (pleasure) to you, like an Epicurean
 Recommends self-conversation to all authors
 Refuge of people who have neither wit nor invention of their own
 Refuse more gracefully than other people could grant
 Repeating
 Reserve with your friends
 Respect without timidity
 Respectful without meanness, easy without too much familiarity
 Return you the ball 'a la volee'
 Rich man never borrows
 Richelieu came and shackled the nation
 Rochefoucault, who, I am afraid, paints man very exactly
 Rochefoucault
 Rough corners which mere nature has given to the smoothest
 Ruined their own son by what they called loving him
 Same coolness and unconcern in any and every company
 Scandal: receiver is always thought, as bad as the thief
 Scarce any flattery is too gross for them to swallow
 Scarcely any body who is absolutely good for nothing
 Secret, without being dark and mysterious
 Secrets
 See what you see, and to hear what you hear
 Seem to like and approve of everything at first
 Seeming frankness with a real reserve
 Seeming inattention to the person who is speaking to you
 Seeming openness is prudent

Seldom a misfortune to be childless
Self_love draws a thick veil between us and our faults
Sentiment_mongers
Sentiments that were never felt, pompously described
Serious without being dull
Shakespeare
She has all the reading that a woman should have
She who conquers only catches a Tartar
She has uncommon, sense and knowledge for a woman

Silence in love betrays more woe
Singularity is only pardonable in old age
Six, or at most seven hours sleep
Smile, where you cannot strike
Some complaisance and attention to fools is prudent
Some men pass their whole time in doing nothing
Something or other is to be got out of everybody
Something must be said, but that something must be nothing
Sooner forgive an injury than an insult
Sow jealousies among one's enemies
Spare the persons while you lash the crimes
Speaking to himself in the glass
Stamp_act has proved a most pernicious measure
Stamp_duty, which our Colonists absolutely refuse to pay
State your difficulties, whenever you have any
Steady assurance, with seeming modesty
Style is the dress of thoughts
Success turns much more upon manner than matter
Sure guide is, he who has often gone the road which you want to
Tacitus
Take the hue of the company you are with
Take characters, as they do most things, upon trust
Take, rather than give, the tone of the company you are in
Talent of hating with good_breeding and loving with prudence
Talk often, but never long
Talk sillily upon a subject of other people's
Talk of natural affection is talking nonsense
Talking of either your own or other people's domestic affairs
Tell me whom you live with, and I will tell you who you are
Tell stories very seldom
The longest life is too short for knowledge
The present moments are the only ones we are sure of

 The worst have something good, and sometimes something great
 There are many avenues to every man
 They thought I informed, because I pleased them
 Think to atone by zeal for their want of merit and importance
 Think yourself less well than you are, in order to be quite so
 Thinks himself much worse than he is
 Those who remarkably affect any one virtue
 Those whom you can make like themselves better
 Three passions that often put honesty to most severe trials
 Timidity and diffidence
 To be heard with success, you must be heard with pleasure
 To be pleased one must please
 To govern mankind, one must not overrate them
 To seem to have forgotten what one remembers
 To know people's real sentiments, I trust much more to my eyes
 To great caution, you can join seeming frankness and openness
 Trifle only with triflers; and be serious only with the serious
 Trifling parts, with their little jargon
 Trite jokes and loud laughter reduce him to a buffoon
 Truth, but not the whole truth, must be the invariable principle
 Truth leaves no room for compliments
 Unaffected silence upon that subject is the only true medium
 Unguarded frankness
 Unintelligible to his readers, and sometimes to himself
 Unopened, because one title in twenty has been omitted
 Unwilling and forced; it will never please
 Use palliatives when you contradict
 Value of moments, when cast up, is immense
 Vanity, interest, and absurdity, always display
 Vanity, that source of many of our follies
 Warm and young thanks, not old and cold ones
 Water drinkers can write nothing good
 We love to be pleased better than to be informed
 We have many of those useful prejudices in this country
 We shall be feared, if we do not show that we fear
 Well dressed, not finely dressed
 What pleases you in others, will in general please them in you
 What displeases or pleases you in others
 What you feel pleases you in them
 What have I done to-day?
 What is impossible, and what is only difficult
 Whatever pleases you most in others
 Whatever is worth doing at all, is worth doing well
 Whatever one must do, one should do 'de bonne grace'

Whatever real merit you have, other people will discover
Who takes warning by the fate of others?
Will not so much as hint at our follies
Will pay very dear for the quarrels and ambition of a few
Wish you, my dear friend, as many happy new years as you deserve
Wit may create any admirers but makes few friends
Witty without satire or commonplace

Women are all so far Machiavelians
Words are the dress of thoughts
Wrapped up and absorbed in their abstruse speculations
Writing anything that may deserve to be read
Writing what may deserve to be read
Yielded commonly without conviction
You must be respectable, if you will be respected
You had much better hold your tongue than them
Your merit and your manners can alone raise you
Your character there, whatever it is, will get before you here
